Cadorath Strengthens Engine Services Center with Key Appointments

Cadorath is excited to announce the expansion of its Engine Services Center with the addition of two industry veterans, Henry Lisboa and Jennifer Olds, to its team. This announcement follows the recent inclusion of Danny Miller as the North American Director of Business Development and Val Flores as Field Service Representative, underscoring Cadorath's commitment to enhancing its service capabilities and expertise.

Henry Lisboa steps into the role of Director of Business Development for Latin and South America, bringing with him over 35 years of comprehensive rotary aircraft experience. His background spans various sectors of helicopter support, including engines, components, avionics, and distribution. Lisboa's appointment is aimed at bolstering Cadorath's presence and service offerings in these key markets. "Joining the Cadorath team is an incredible opportunity," said Lisboa. "Cadorath's reputation as a leader in component MRO for Rolls-Royce AMROC centers is well-established. I look forward to expanding our M250 and RR300 services, providing our customer network with more options for their MRO needs."

Joining alongside Lisboa, Jennifer Olds takes on the role of Customer Service Representative, enhancing the customer experience with her 25-plus years of customer support expertise. Olds is enthusiastic about her new position, stating, "I am eager to contribute my skills, knowledge, and experience to the Engine Services team. I can't wait to see the incredible achievements we will accomplish together."

David R. Haines, Chief Operating Officer at Cadorath, emphasized the value of these new additions to the team. "Our number one asset at Cadorath is our people. The depth of experience that Henry and Jennifer bring will significantly contribute to our team's strength and our ability to serve our clients."

These strategic appointments reflect Cadorath's ongoing commitment to excellence in its Engine Services Center, ensuring the company remains at the forefront of the aviation industry by offering unparalleled expertise and customer service.
